

Dear Sirs/Mmes.:

I would like to voice my opinion strongly that Wisconsin's No Call law not be weakened in any way. Telemarketers represent the worst of marketing; they are often rude, untimely, and fond of using pressure tactics to sell often unneeded products or services.

Americans need less stress, not more. Please apply common sense and courtesy to this issue; allow Wisconsin's No Call law to stand as it is. Why would our governmental representatives, who are supported by taxpayers' hard earned dollars, cave in to the banks which are already making a killing on the public and probably have more tax loopholes up their sleeve than we could imagine?

Sincerely,

Brian Moyer
